COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT MEETING

TRUST

What is the Sibona Ilanga Trust?

The Trust was established by De Aar Solar Power (also known as the De Aar plant or the De Aar project company) as part of the Renewable Energy Independent Power Producer (REIPP) programme implemented by the government to assist in alleviating South Africa's electricity shortage.

The Trust owns 8% of the De Aar plant. The Trust owns this share through its 'trust company'. This means that when profits are made by the De Aar plant the trust receives 8% of it. This is paid in 'dividends' to the trust company and then on to the trust.

However, the trust had to take loans to buy its 8% share in the De Aar plant. For several years from the time the trust was established, this debt had to first be paid with almost all the funds received by the trust. In 2019 the loans were finally settled and the trust was able to fund more community development projects.

The Trust is an independent entity that is governed by trustees who have been appointed to ensure that it is run in an effective, efficient, responsible, and accountable way.

What does the Sibona Ilanga Trust do?

The Sibona Ilanga Trust supports social and economic advancement within a 50-kilometer radius from the De Aar Solar Power plant. The Trust does this by partnering with local people and their organisations to build strong, vibrant, safe and prosperous communities that have more social and economic equality than in the past. It supports community-driven initiatives through grantmaking, capacity building and other activities.

After consultation with communities, a review of grant applications that it has received in the past, and analysis of needs, gaps and opportunities in the places where it works, the trust has decided to give priority to community organisations that focus on the following activities for now:

- Market and enterprise development: The development of small businesses with a particular focus on Britstown, Philipstown and Hanover.
- Youth education and life skills: Initiatives that support young people to break out of the inter-generational cycle of poverty, with a particular focus on peer support and social re-investment by beneficiaries.
- Food: Community-based nutrition initiatives that support vulnerable people including children and elderly people, with priority given to initiatives that produce food locally and/or source their food supplies from small local suppliers.

The Trust provides grants to organisations who apply for support to run these activities. Grants are given through a competitive process where many groups apply and their applications are assessed in comparison to each other, normally through an open call for grant applications.

The Trust also runs its own programmes including programmes to support young people in school and out of school develop life skills that prepare them to be job-ready or ready to participate in further education and skills development opportunities, giving educational and skills development bursaries to young people, and a capacity building programme to link small local businesses into the food supply chains of community based food distribution projects.

In addition, the trust has set up a standing disaster relief fund to be able to respond to unexpected emergencies that affect communities as they arise, which it has used to respond to urgent community needs such as during the COVID-19 crisis, for example. It was able to provide food and blankets to those who were not able to benefit from feeding schemes which had to close, and provide protective equipment to enable feeding schemes to resume their activities.

Highlights for 2025

Opening and Handover of the Philipstown Community Hall

Following our earlier presentation on the partnership with Renosterberg Local Municipality, which oversees Philipstown, we are pleased to report that the community hall has been fully renovated and completed shortly after the last community meeting.

A formal handover ceremony was held with the Mayor to officially return the hall to the Municipality. This milestone is particularly significant as it ensures full accessibility for people with disabilities, addressing a long-standing concern raised by the Champion of Hope Organisation on behalf of community members who previously lacked access.

The Trust invested R374,000 in the renovations, which covered internal upgrades, ablution facilities, ceilings, lighting, and external painting. The revitalised hall now serves as a valuable resource for Philipstown and surrounding communities, providing a dignified and accessible space for meetings, gatherings, and community activities.

Youth Development Programme – Community Partnership Initiative (CPI)

In our previous community engagement meeting, we reported on the progress and way forward for the Youth Development Programme. The Trust expressed its commitment to ensuring that the implementing partner transfers skills to local youth development organisations, enabling them to continue this important work within their own communities.

To achieve this, youth organisations were invited to a dedicated training programme designed to transfer skills that support two key focus areas:

- The Trailblazer Programme – supporting youth who are in school.
- The Catalyst Programme – supporting youth who are out of school.

Following the training, three organisations, Jireh Economic and Resources Centre Hub (De Aar), Youth at Home (Philipstown), and Ethembeni Community Centre, were formally appointed as implementation partners of the Trust to extend these skills to young people. A total allocation of R1.3 million was shared amongst the three organisations to support their work. This pilot phase marks the beginning of a long-term partnership between the Trust and these organisations. Going forward, they will lead the implementation of youth development programmes across De Aar, Britstown, Philipstown, and Hanover, ensuring that young people in these communities have access to sustained support and opportunities.

The long-awaited Wheels for Change event took place at Theron High School on 29 August 2025, drawing the community together for a day of inspiration and activity. The initiative, aimed at empowering local organisations, saw three CPIs competing for the ultimate prize, a vehicle to strengthen and expand their community work. Youth at Home claimed the top prize, while Jireh Economic and Resource Hub and Ethembeni received laptops, appliances, and office consumables.

The event closed with gratitude for the organisations' dedication, leaving attendees inspired by collaboration. Wheels for Change once again celebrated unity, resilience, and the drive to create positive community impact - one wheel at a time.

Property Acquisition

The Trust previously reported that it had initiated the process of purchasing a building intended to serve as a community hub, accommodating various initiatives such as enterprise development, nonprofit activities, and other local innovations. The property, acquired in 2023, cost R4.3 million and included 6.1 hectares of land with existing infrastructure. At the time, the Trust was awaiting the transfer of the title deed to secure full ownership.

Unfortunately, while the legal documents were still being processed by the municipality, the building was severely vandalised by community members. The extent of the damage was so substantial that the Trust could not cover the costs of repairs and renovations, which significantly dampened the momentum of the project.

As a result, the Trustees recommended withdrawing from the purchase, as the current owner had failed to ensure the security of the property during the transition period. Legal processes have since been initiated, and the Trust has engaged local community members to establish a property committee. This committee will support efforts to identify alternative land or a suitable property, ensuring that the vision of a community hub dedicated to supporting local initiatives remains alive.

God Is Good Centre Opens Its Doors to Brighter Futures

What began in October 2019 as the Hebron Home, a registered cluster foster home supported by the Trust, has now blossomed into something bigger and better. Over the years, the home became a safe haven for many children in need-but as the number of children grew, so did the need for more space to nurture and engage them.

In response, God Is Good (GIG) submitted a proposal in the Trust's 2024 grant call to acquire a larger home with room to grow. After careful review and due diligence, the Trust proudly approved the request. On 9 October 2024, the dream became a reality with the official opening of the new God Is Good Centre, celebrated in the presence of the Trust, partners, and community stakeholders.

The celebration kicked off with the unveiling of the new signage, led by Mr. Zukile Tom, who praised the lasting impact of GIG's work. Foster child Iviwe Ciko's powerful testimony moved the crowd to tears, while performances by Adone Otto, the children, and teacher Madre Markgraaf lifted spirits even higher. The day ended with a ribbon-cutting, home tour, and joyful activities for the children-marking a true new beginning.

What has the Sibona Ilanga Trust been spending on?

Since 2014 when the De Aar Solar Power plant started operating, the Trust has received R191 million. The total amount paid to settle loans was R54 million, leaving R137 million to be spent on community development projects, setting up the Trust, and the operational programmes of the Trust. The table and chart below illustrate how dividends were used to pay the debt. All debt was paid up in December 2019.

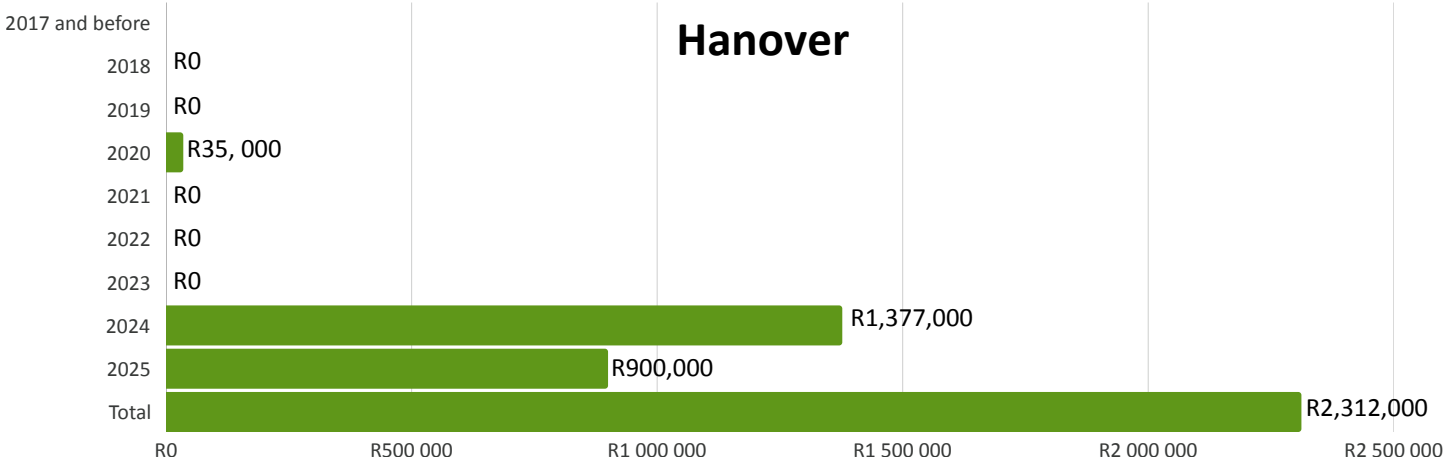

The Trust wants to manage its funds responsibly and invest in long term community development initiatives over several years as well as respond to more immediate needs. It therefore gives grants each year but also sets aside money for initiatives that will run over a few years, such as youth development, capacity building initiatives or bursaries for education and skills development.

The graph below shows the total amount of money the trust has already committed (set aside) to the various initiatives that it focuses on. The graph also shows the total amount of money paid to beneficiaries so far.

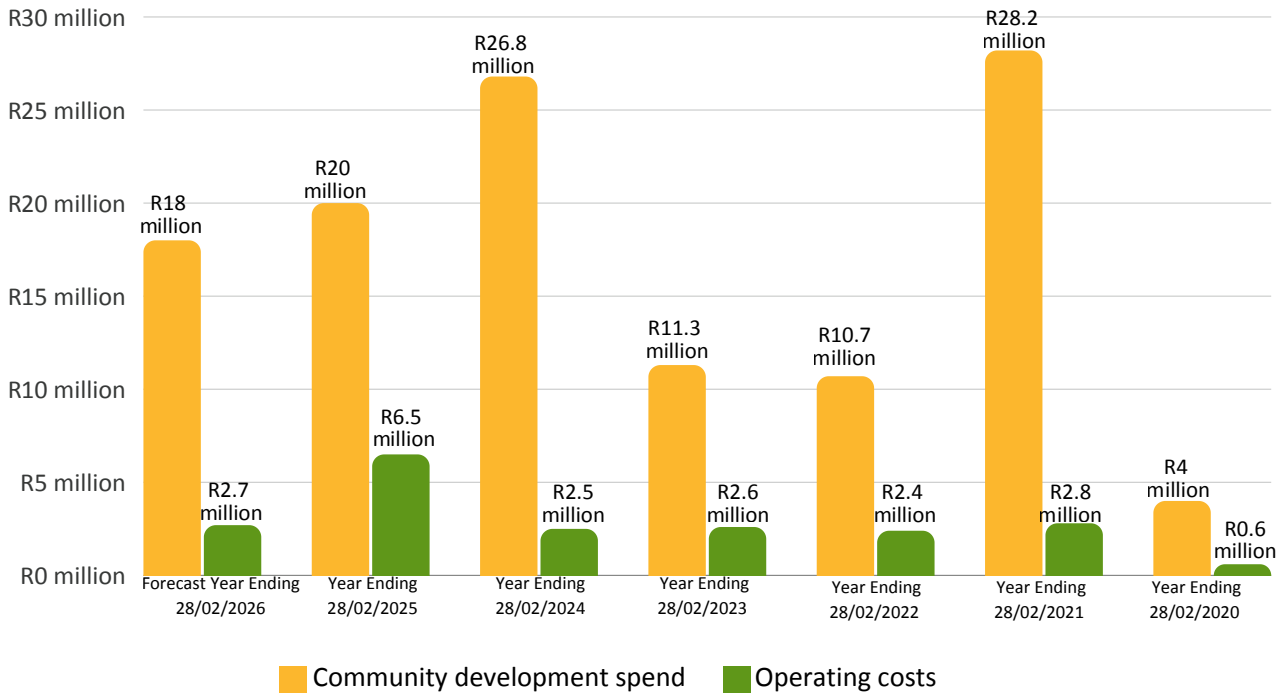

The graph below shows the amount of money that the Trust has committed to programmes in communities since its inception. This money is for various community-based initiatives as shown in the previous graph. The total amount committed to spend specifically in particular towns is as follows: Hanover is R1.4 million, Philipstown is R1.3 million, Britstown is R2.4 million, and De Aar is R17.8 million.

In addition, the Trust has committed money to some big initiatives, such as youth life skills, education and skills training, infrastructure development, and capacity building which spreads across all communities. This is shown in the radius wide graph below, totalling R40.2 million.

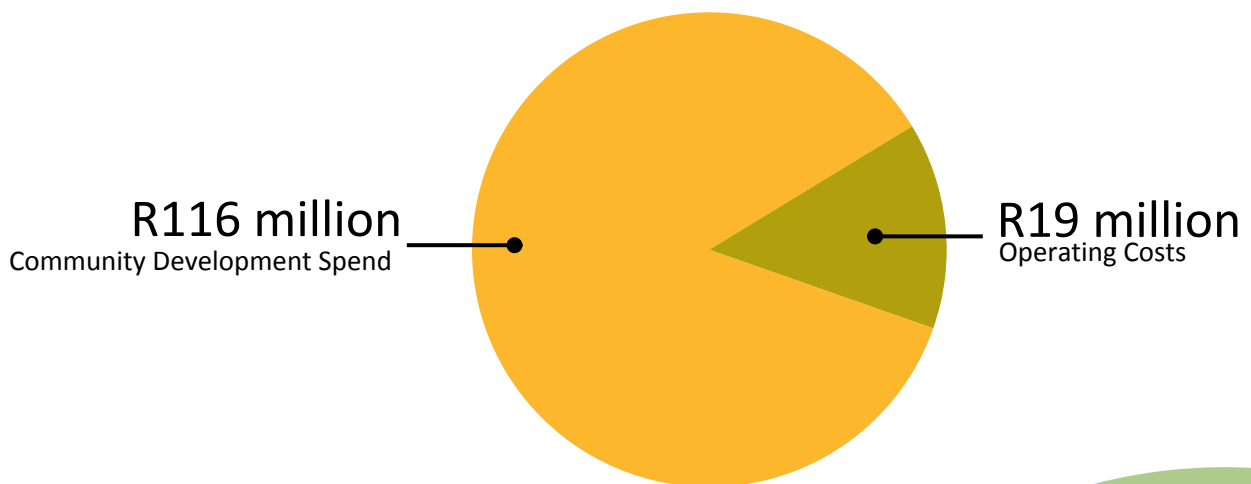

Like any other organisation, the Trust incurs costs to operate and achieve its purpose. From the Trust's inception until February 2019, Globeleq (the majority shareholder in the De Aar Solar Power plant) managed and funded the operations of the Trust until the Trust could manage its own operations. The trust took the big step in March 2019 to manage its own operations. This took a lot of planning and some big decisions. At that point the Trust also paid back to Globeleq the funds it owed relating to managing and funding the Trust.

The chart below shows the operating costs compared to the money allocated for grants and programmes each year up to February 2025.

The chart below shows the total amount of money spent on community development and operations. R116 million out of R136 million was allocated to grants and programmes, and R19 million was used for operating costs since the inception of the trust. These indicators include forecasts for the rest of the current year.
